

The Use of the Genitive or Accusative for the Direct Object of Negated Verbs in Russian:

A Bibliography

G. G. Corbett
University of Surrey

This bibliography is intended to be as complete as possible in respect of works devoted exclusively to case selection for the object of negated verbs in Russian. For this reason, some items have been included which I have not seen, and so a few references are not complete. Works which treat the problem in question but are not solely devoted to it are included either if they make a substantial contribution or if the title would not lead one to expect a section relevant to case selection in Russian (thus the standard grammars are omitted). In both instances, the page numbers of the relevant section are indicated in parentheses after the reference. I am very grateful to Professor Arto Mustajoki for bringing several items to my attention.
